The Cullen Suite, Royal College of Physicians, 9 Queen Street, Edinburgh, EH2 1JQ

Chair/Président: Clark Lawlor (Northumbria University)

Northumbria University is currently exploring the long eighteenth-century world of texts, art, and medicine through a Leverhulme-funded major project, 'Writing Doctors: Medical Personality and Representation, ca.1660–1832'. This special event, located in the historic Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, showcases the work of scholars involved with this project.

The two panels are followed by a guided tour of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. Please note that the Royal College of Physicians is in New Town, about 20 minutes' walk (or a 5-minute cab ride) from the university.

Thursday / Jeudi 08.00 – 09.30

Chair/Président.e: Emily Friedman (Auburn University)

Room/Salle: G.05, 50 George Square

Digital Humanities methods remains elusive to many scholars because they do not know where/how to begin, and access to specialized training can be costly. Many successful digital humanists in eighteenth-century studies are self-taught, with small budgets. This session, a variant on successful series run at ASECS, will serve as an introduction to topics a principal investigator needs to consider before beginning a new project, and guidance through the first stages of project development. Participants will walk away with a clearer articulation of where to start, what skills they may need for different kinds of research questions, and different strategies for sharing one's work in peer-reviewed formats.

Thursday / Jeudi 14.30 – 16.15

Chair/Président.e: Olivia Ferguson (University of Edinburgh)

Room/Salle: McEwan Hall Auditorium

I invite Congress participants to take part in a caricature life drawing workshop with models dressed in eighteenth-century costume. I begin the session with a short introduction before leading participants through warm-up exercises in observing and drawing the model. There will then be 2 or 3 portraiture tasks in which participants will be invited to form small groups drawing individual participants who have volunteered to act as models, and to spend 10 minutes caricaturing them. The session concludes with discussion.
